"Scathelock Remember!"

As he spoke, a loud voice from the other side of the green shouted, in a laughing tone,

"For Richard de Ashby's bonnet!"

As soon as he saw that he had attracted attention, he suddenly raised the bow he held in his hand, drew it to the full extent of his arm, and an arrow whistled through the air. Richard de Ashby had started slightly on one side as soon as he saw the archer take his aim, but the forester altered the direction of his arm, with a laugh, even as he loosed the shaft from the string, and the missile, with unerring truth, passed through the hood that it was intended for, and would have fallen beyond had it not been stopped by a jewel in the front. As it was, the arrow remained hanging amongst his black hair, and when he drew it forth, with a white cheek, and a somewhat trembling hand, he read imprinted in black letters, on the wood just below the feather, "Scathelock. Remember."

The nobles handed the arrow one to another, read the name, and the word that followed it, and then gazed in each others faces with a meaning look.

Every ship navigating between the United Kingdom and any place out of the same, shall have, and keep constantly on board, a sufficient supply of Medicines and Medicaments, suitable to Accidents and Diseases arising on Sea Voyages, in accordance with the scale which shall, from time to time, or at any time, be issued by the Lord High Admiral, and published in the London Gazette. And every ship (except those bound to European ports, or to ports in the Mediterranean sea) shall also have on board a sufficient quantity of lime or lemon juice, sugar, and vinegar; the lime or lemon juice, sugar, and vinegar, to be served out to the crew, whenever they shall have been consuming salt provisions for ten days,—the lime or lemon juice and sugar daily, after the rate of half an ounce each per day, and the vinegar weekly, at the rate of half a pint per week, to each person, so long as the consumption of salt provisions be continued.

PENALTIES.

In case any default shall be made in providing and keeping such Medicines, Medicaments, and lime or lemon juice, sugar, or vinegar, the owner of the ship shall incur a penalty of £20 for each and every default; and in case of default of serving out such lime or lemon juice, sugar, or vinegar, as aforesaid, the master shall incur a penalty of £5 for each and every default.

In case the master or any seaman shall receive any hurt or injury, in the service of the ship, the expense of providing the necessary surgical and medical advice, with attendance and medicines, and for his subsistence, until he shall have been cured, or shall have been brought back to some port of the United Kingdom, shall, together with the costs of his conveyance to the United Kingdom, be defrayed by the said owners of the ship, without any deduction whatever on that account from the wages of such master or seaman; and if paid by any officer or other person, on behalf of Her Majesty, the amount, with full costs of suit, shall be recovered as a debt due to Her Majesty. And every ship, having one hundred persons, or upwards, on board, and every ship, the voyage of which shall be deemed under the provisions of the act, 5 and 6 Vic., c. 107, intituled "An Act for regulating the Carriage of Passengers in Merchant Vessels," to exceed twelve weeks, having fifty persons or upwards on board, shall have on board, as one of her complement, some person duly authorized by law, to practise in this kingdom as a physician, surgeon, or apothecary; and in case of every default, the owner shall incur a penalty not exceeding £100.

ACT I.

Scene 1st -

The Council chamber of Bath - Astola discovered seated on his throne, surrounded by attendants.

Astola! - I am a King! - My subjects fear my wrath,
In fact I lord it over Lady Bath;
And from this throne from morn till close of day
I give my Mandates and my slaves obey.
No Paltry King am I - across the tide
Dwells Woolwich's Duke - I told him once he lied -
And marched instead to cram it down his throat.
Nor faltered - till I reached the Ferry Boat -
Across the angry wave I saw him land
And Caesar - like I turned not back to Land, were sent as fat men up to Leweston!-

Witch }= Aye gentle Sirs- I fear me ye are cunning
But ate me, pray thee, did he fat up Dummy?-
And how could he good Sirs send from his house
So lean a man as one- as one called-

Dm Baths }= Rouse!

Artola }= Aye, that, is serious!- but perhaps I can explain the point- Nine tailors make a man,
And so when he sent up- as tho he had-
By nine that tailors might was multiplied
Making 200 and ¼- thus you see
Ere he passed muster from our great "Jerre"-

When seeing them shall hail as Beautys Queen! -
The card over lie ——

Astola } Cease and be no jester they lied to me once - I think twas in jest —

Witch } There's one all antress who shall cross thy path a rustic maiden from her own West Bath -

~~I fail to put forth my best efforts for in all~~ 9-1

And than forgetting all shall rush to greet her—

Don Baths }- Speak, - speak her name! -
Witch }- The cards spell out —— "Anita!"
(Don Baths starts) -

Artola }= Who shall be King of Baeth in 1900
Canst answer that — for ofttimes I've wondered,
About my empire — who should ere it rule
Whether a wise man — or a brainless fool -
Speak, show that knowst the future ——

Witch }= Wouldst be a learner

My cards spell out the name —— that Queen is to be H. Turner -

Don Baths }- Didst say Anita - Witch }- Aye she shall be — the brightest star that ever shone for thee a flower to glad thine eye! — a seal not only to be this what the cards have spoke

Don Baths }- I've had a dreams! and some me came to me
More fair than Venus from the glassy sea,

She lisped my name — it was ~~was~~ long ago
But memory still that phantom form doth show!
Astarté-like she spoke in words divine
No bird sings Sweeter than her words — "I'm thine!"
It was not Julia no — nor Water Street
Can boast a face so all divinely Sweet —
Not Washington St with all its beauté rare
To match such loveliness methinks would dare.
I know not what to say my pulses thrill ——

Antony) Bah on your love — you'd better now Keep Still! —
Your Gardiner matters are not quite at rest

And hate not love should sanckle in your breast.
But tell me Witch — and mark you tell no lies
How long "fore freights to Liverpool unit rise! —

Witch) = My view goes not so far! — but seems to me
That you might know if you but asked Toby,
Or that one with him — whom the Gods adore —

The earth, this is the rendezvous for lovers.
That's — they say so, but to me its clear
We can't believe one half we daily hear —
Or If we did, I think we'd soon get full — This's just as sure as I'm Mehitable.

I've got a lover and I call him "dear" —
But you can bet I never met him here,
No, "not for Joseph" — but his name aint Joe
I meet him just a little way below —

Hast been a Showman? —

Julia } — Darling do not speak.
2 think to say the least she shows much cheek —

Mehitabb } — You talk of cheek — there's nothing in your shows
But shavings of the cheek and collar bone —
(exit Mehitabb in a rage) —

Julia } - "But cheek and collar bone!" — revenge that Sir! -

Bathussimo } I would but she is gone —

Julia — } Go after her! —

Bathussimo } - I've been a Shrowman - and have been much worse -
— "Give me a horse - my Kingdom for a horse!"
"Lay on Macduff!" "My daughter, O my daughter" -

Julia } - What ails you Sir — I do not think You oughter! -
There was a time You talked to me of love and this
And has it now got down to such as this,
Don Bathe seems me and I fear that You
Have lost your mind since that last interview.

I'll not endure it Sir! - no man shall slight the Belle of Water Street by day or night! — (exit Julia) -

Bathusimo } - She's gone and I am not - well let her go!
How true it is, man wants but little here below!
Women are fair to view — hard to the touch
They love too little and they want too much
One instant, angels — and the next they're, what? - They're something - but the name I have forgot! - Yet we must have women, and they must have men
And Bright am I young I think has ten times ten

If he had her 2 think beyond a doubt Polygamy would shortly be played out!-
(enter Justin)

Justin)- What ails my Lord- methinks you look cast down
Hast come beneath Artola's fearful frown?-
2 hear that matters of a grave import
Come up to morrow 'fore his regal court-
The Witch is summoned- 2 don't think she'll fail
Because she lies now in our County Jail

Bathissimo)- There let her lie and rot- woe to the throne
Artola sits on- it is overthrown

Treason shall stab him with her deadly dart
And envy rankle his malignant heart Hereafter, Justin let our watchword be "Death to the traitor"- then can Baith be free
Strange deeds shall be enacted here ere long
But ere they're done 2'll chant one solemn song.
~~Nero~~ A Nero fiddled over burning Rome
2'll do the same to my own ruined home-
What shall 2 chant? Some song of far off Greece

Justin)- 2'd like to hear that ~~song~~ dirge in the Police!-

Bathissimo)- It shall be done!- prepare ye now to hear 2'll make the noise- 2 only want your ear!-

Bathissimo Sings } = 2m Mr. Sprague of the Bath Police.
2 roll in fat — 2 have been to Grace
At night, when 2 hear any warlike sound,
You can bet your life 2m in the first one round —

2 teach young rowdies how to walk
How to walk — how to walk —
2 teach young rowdies how to walk
For 2m Mr Sprague of the Police!!

2 joined this force — how long ago
The oldest inhabitant dosn't Know! —
At least Nat Singley tells me so —
And he hasn't been in the army! —
When 2 go out the boys they cry
When 2 go out the boys they cry
When 2 go out the boys they cry
Oh, he hasn't been in the army! —

— Spoken —

But 2 started to go on the light Brigade and they wouldn't have me — consequently 2 staid at home to guard the City Hall — But —

2m Mr Sprague of the Bath Police
2m Mr Sprague of the Bath Police &c &c

At the Witch Spring oftentimes 2'm seen
2 may be stout — buff 2'm not so green —
2 Know young fellows what you mean
When you Sing out — "light Brigader"!

When 2 go out the rowdies flee
When 2 go out the rowdies flee
When 2 go out the rowdies flee
From ~~the~~ me the light Brigader! —

(Spoken)

But 2 have to do my duty! — and though the guilty may defame me, yet 2 Know that Him is with me, for

2m Mr Sprague &c &c —

2 often think — who'll take my place
When my poor name Death shall ~~Death~~ erase? —
2 hope 2've brought it no disgrace! —
2've tried to do my duty! —
We all have failings more or less,
We all have failings more or less,
We all have failing's more or less
We can but do our duty! —

And 2m Mr Sprague &c &c

— End of Act 2d —

step nearer to the lodge stood the bold forester; his fine muscular bsr clear and defined in his tight-fitting garb, and his nut brown hair curling round his thoughtful forehead. Robin knew the world too well to suppose that such happiness could last long, but yet his was of that firm and hardy nature which clouds not the present with cares and fears of the future, but extracts from every hour its honey, and leaves the rest to fate. Page 139 - Forest Days.

"Perhaps it may be so," said Robin Hood; "but yet, my good lord I could wish that persons in high position would remember that,
with their advantages and privileges, with wealth, power, and dignity, greater than their fellow-men, they have greater duties and obligations likewise; and, as envy places them where all their faults may be observed, it would be as well if, as a body, they were to remember that each man who disgraces himself disgraces his whole order. Page 136 - Forest Days.

Opposite to the mouth of the road by which they came, was the first building that they had seen upon their ride. It was of a very peculiar architecture, consisting of round stones piled upon one another, and cemented together, being what is called rubble, while the windows and doors alone, presented hewn stone lintels and transoms, with short small columns supporting each. A quantity of ivy had grown over the greater part of the building; but there were lights within, and gay voices laughing, and for a moment Robin Hood drew up his horse as if to listen. "Here," he said, at length, "lived and reigned a Saxon Thane when the trees of Sherwood were yet young. His bones lie in the little chapel behind. The memory of the place has passed away as well as the people that inhabited it, and it has come to be the abode of a child of the same race, when outlawed for the love of his country." Page 101 - Forest Days.

Two notes, or, as they were then called, mots, upon his horn, formed the only signal that Robin Hood gave of his return; but in an instant those sounds brought forth a head from one of the windows at the height of about twelve or thirteen feet from the ground. Page 101. Forest Days.

The hero of the forest, Robin Hood was an English yeoman, of a very superior mind, living in the time of 1180, outlawed for his adherence to the popular party of the day, and taking a share in the important struggle btwixen the weak and tyrannical, though accomplished
Henry III., and that great and extraordinary leader, Simon de Montfort, Earl of Leicester.

Theodore Roosvelt

The welfare of each of us is dependent fundamentally upon the welfare of all and therefore in public life no man is the best representative of each of us unless he tries to do good to each by trying to do what is right to represent all true and honest ca of all sections and all classes and to work for their interests by working for our common country. Sept 7th 1903. From address at Syracuse Fair.

The greatest men that ever lived, if we were to examine accurately all the actions that they have performed at different periods of their existence, and could try them with impartial and perfect discriminating judgment, would be found to have committed more than one great mistake which in many instances did not lead to the evil consequences that might have been anticipated. History shows us that the moment at which an act is committed most frequently decides whether consequences shall be great or insignificant than the act itself.
